CHINA REVIEW 1999

Edited by
Chong Chor Lau and Geng Xiao

China Review examines issues of recent legal developments, peasant discontent and protests reorientation of social units, occupational structure and labour relations, literary tastes and cross-border media relations, all issues that relate to a fast moving socio-economic entity. It continues to be a comprehensive and timely volume for China watchers as well as readers interested in the developments in contemporary China.

This CD-ROM is a collection of all the articles from the China Review series since its yearly publication in 1991. There are a total of 136 articles from 121 authors. These articles constitute a survey of China's major sectors and critically summarize the political, economic and social developments of China in recent years.
