Professor Diana Lee
Professor of Nursing and Director
The Nethersole School of Nursing
The Chinese University of Hong Kong

The year 2010 sees the School in progress at various fronts. In this annual report, I am pleased to highlight some of our key activities and achievements during the year.

Pursuing education and research excellence is always high on our agenda. With the effective implementation of new academic programmes and initiatives, we have enriched our nursing curriculum and our student number has significantly increased. The Bachelor of Nursing was again ranked among the top two most competitive programmes in the University. In addition to securing competitive grants and publishing research outputs, we have successfully launched a new website on cardiovascular management and organized two press conferences to disseminate research findings to the public. Internationalization is also one of our focuses. Our academic links have been further extended to include more academic and exchange partners from different corners of the world.

While approaching its 20th anniversary in 2011, the School continues to gain momentum for scaling new heights of excellence in academic and research endeavors. A series of special activities will be organized during the anniversary year to celebrate this memorable milestone with our staff, students, alumni, partners and friends.

Building on our competitive strengths and with your unfailing support, I see a very bright and promising future for the School on all fronts!
Staff of the School

The School has a strong profile of staff who have a diversified range of academic and professional qualifications, research expertise and clinical experience. Our academic staff are actively involved in nursing education and research, and in working collaboratively with colleagues from local hospitals and community agencies.

Vice-Chancellor’s Exemplary Teaching Award

Prof. Janita Chau received the Vice-Chancellor’s Exemplary Teaching Award 2009 on 15 June. This is a prestigious award presenting annually to one outstanding teaching staff from each faculty whose performance in teaching is considered excellent in the eyes of students and other teaching staff.
Public lecture overwhelmingly received

The School invited Prof. Sally Thorne, Professor and Director, School of Nursing, University of British Columbia, Canada to deliver a public lecture entitled “Innovative nursing roles in chronic disease management” on 15 April. The lecture attracted over 250 participants, including local nursing leaders Ms. Sylvia Fung, Chief Manager (Nursing), Hospital Authority, and Ms. Sannie Chan, Principle Nursing Officer, Department of Health.

In 2010, the School continued to obtain research grants from various funding agents, such as the Innovative and Technology Fund, UGC Knowledge Transfer Project Fund, and Food & Health Bureau.

During the year, our four research theme groups also continued to contribute to the diverse research profile of the School. Research projects being undertaken by these groups focus on advanced care planning, stroke self-management, web-based exercise, home care service needs for chronically ill patients and families, etc. The amount of seeding money allocated to each group has been increased to encourage research studies deemed to be of high scientific merit.
The research governance framework of the School has been further revised to optimize the internal review process. A series of invited guest research seminars and statistical workshops were conducted to enhance the research and statistical expertise of staff. Regular workshops on research data security were organized to update staff about the precautions to safeguard their research data.

The School will organize the 5th Pan-Pacific Nursing Conference and 7th Nursing Symposium on Cancer Care in September 2011. The conference will be one of our key events to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the School.
In 2010, the Bachelor of Nursing as the flagship programme of the School was again ranked among the top two most competitive programmes in CUHK. It has also remained as the largest UGC-funded programme of its kind in Hong Kong and its admission GPA has remained as the highest among all local undergraduate programmes since 1995. With the commencement of senior year intake scheme, the programme admitted 197 Year 1 and 60 senior year students. Enrolment application to the Master of Nursing Science (Pre-registration) programme in 2010 was again enormous. A total of 60 high quality students were admitted, reflecting that the programme was well received by non-nursing graduates who would like to pursue a professional career in nursing. Equally impressive was the application for enrolment to the Doctor of Nursing programme, and nine experienced and high caliber registered nurses were admitted. To enrich their exposure to clinical leadership and practice, the School has successfully linked up with international partners to offer clinical practicum overseas. Students would have the opportunity to go abroad and learn from internationally renowned nurse practitioners in their third year of study.

An MPhil-PhD programme was introduced to replace the existing MPhil and PhD programmes in 2010.
Our number of students significantly increased during the year with the introduction of senior year intake scheme for the Bachelor of Nursing programme and the second year admission of Master of Nursing Science (Pre-registration) and Doctor of Nursing students. The School has expanded to more placement venues and recruited additional clinical instructors and mentors to cater for the increasing needs of students.

We would like to express our gratitude to our old clinical partners for offering additional placement venues and clinical mentors for our students, and to our new clinical partners for their invaluable support. Besides, the School has come into agreement with new clinical partners to provide Doctor of Nursing students with the opportunity to learn from nurse consultants/practitioners in local and overseas clinical settings.
The School organized three clinical teaching/assessment courses for clinical mentors in 2010. A clinical teaching workshop and a workshop on refreshing family nursing were also conducted.

Our academic staff have actively involved in clinical teaching and assessment for our students. Seven of them were appointed as Honorary Advanced Practice Nurses by the Hospital Authority to collaborate closely with HA colleagues to promote excellence in clinical care.
Below are internationally peer-reviewed publications and conference presentations of our academic staff in 2010.

The Nethersole Nursing Practice Research Unit is committed to promoting excellence in gerontological nursing through research, education, and the development of innovative nursing interventions and evidence-based practice. With its continuous effort well appreciated, the NNPRU has successfully obtained financial support from the Nethersole Endowment Fund for another 3 years from 2010 to 2013.

The NNPRU has completed data collection and analysis for the development of an evidence-based nursing care protocol on foot and toenail care for geriatric patients in 2010. To facilitate knowledge transfer, the NNPRU’s care protocol and study findings were disseminated to frontline staff in local hospitals and long term care settings through a series of seminars and conference presentations. The seminars were well received with 175 colleagues participating. Besides, the NNPRU also offered clinical placement opportunities for 40 undergraduates of our School and received over 30 exchange students and academic staff from mainland China and Taiwan during the year.

In 2010, the Hong Kong Centre for Evidence Based Nursing continued to strive for excellence in promoting evidence-based nursing practice through undertaking systematic reviews, conducting education workshops and evaluating evidence utilization in practice. It has also provided consultative services on improving the quality and effectiveness of nursing care, and collaborated with JBI collaborating centres to conduct systematic reviews and evaluate evidence-based guidelines.

Evidence Synthesis

During the year, the HKCEBN completed a systematic review on eye irrigation for patients with ocular chemical burns, and a systematic review on the effects of psychosocial interventions for stroke family caregivers was in progress.
Evidence Transfer

The HKCEBN conducted six evidence-based practice workshops for 236 practicing nurses from Hospital Authority to meet their professional development needs. The HKCERN also conducted teaching & learning workshops on new evidence-based resources and a 5-day in-house systematic review training programme for academic, clinical and research staff of the School. All these workshops were well received and evaluated.

Evidence Utilization

The HKCERN has also developed an evidence-based practice guideline and training resources on care of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease patients receiving non-invasive ventilation in collaboration with nurses from the Department of Medicine and Therapeutic, Prince of Wales Hospital.
In 2010, the CADENZA Training Programme continued to deliver a wide range of training activities on gerontology. Multi-disciplinary professionals including nurses, social workers, occupational therapists, physiotherapists, lawyers, priests, and executives in social and health care sectors have been working collaboratively to deliver the activities.

Since its launch in 2008 till November 2010, the Programme has conducted 105 public seminars, 74 workshops, and 30 web-based courses for a total of 14,935 participants. Sixty-eight participants have been awarded the title of CADENZA Practitioner and 16 of CADENZA Ambassador.
Besides, the Programme has organized 25 roadshows to deliver messages on gerontology in 18 districts in Hong Kong, and five carnivals on different themes such as promoting intergenerational solidarity for a total of 5,663 participants.
Memorandum of Academic Cooperation

The School recognises the importance of links with colleagues outside Hong Kong, and has established formal links with prestigious universities in mainland China and overseas. The academic partners of the School in 2010 are listed as below.
