

Hi!

Welcome to Hong Kong for an education and experience of Asian culture!

I am the chairman of the History Department at the Chinese University and my Department provides a number of exciting courses taught in English for you to choose.

If you are interested in a new approach in studying of Chinese History through excursion and experience, I would suggest Professor Sui-wai Cheung's Chinese History in the Field (first term). This is an introductory course into Chinese History which will incorporate four on-site visits in addition to classroom learning.

For those who are interested in China's relationship with Taiwan, I recommend to you Professor Frank Ching's Cross-Strait Relations in International and Historical Perspectives (first term), and Sino-US Relations since 1949 (second term).

For China's recent development, the Department offers other interesting courses in Chinese history include Professor Priscilla Chung's Palace Women and Court Politics in Imperial China (first term), and History of Chinese Women (second term), Professor Willy Lam's The Hu Jintao-Wen Jiabao Administration (2002-2009) (second term). Professor So Kee Long teaches Tradition and Transformation in Chinese History (first term); Professor Choi Chi Cheung's Family Firms: Hierarchy, Management and Network in Modern China (second term) and Professor David Pong's Revolution and Modernization in Twentieth-Century China (second term).

My department also offers a selection of history courses outside the China context. Professor Frederick Cheung teaches Tradition and Transformation in Western History (first term), and Early English Constitutional History (second term); and Professor Poo Mu-chou's Ancient Egypt: History, Art, Religion, and Modern Perceptions (second term). Ms Yoko Miyakawa offers a course on History of Modern Japan since Meiji in the first term and Nationalism in Japan in the second term; and Professor Patricia Ebrey's Social and Cultural History of the Song Period (first term). Dr. Ian Morley lectures on the History and the Historian (Introductory), and Patterns in Urban History and Development (first term), and The Industrial Revolution and its Impacts (second term). Dr. Thomas Brophy's History of Modern Britain and Modern Europe: from Revolution to Consensus in the first term, History and the Historian (Advanced), Explorations in Modern American History and Great Britain and the British Empire in the second term. Mr. Michael Lee's teaches History of Singapore (first term).

All our courses carry three credits. A three-credit course requires tutorial attendance but I think you will find discussion around designated themes related to lectures rewarding.

Do let me or my office know if you have questions.

I wish you a fruitful time in Hong Kong.

Leung Yuen-sang
22 June 2009

Website: <http://www.history.cuhk.edu.hk>      Email: history@cuhk.edu.hk