Recruitment: 2016 HPAIR Asia Conference Host Country Organizing Committee

The Harvard Project for Asian and International Relations (HPAIR) is student-run organization of the Harvard University. HPAIR organizes Harvard University’s largest annual student conferences in the Asia-Pacific region. Since 1991, we have gathered a large pool of international students from top universities, renowned academics, business professionals, and political stars to engage in our rigorous educational events.

Today, HPAIR has significantly expanded to offer two annual conferences. Through plenary sessions, panels, keynotes, workshops, and case studies, the conferences provide valuable opportunities for discussion about challenges and trends in the Asian international landscape.

The HPAIR Asia Conference (Aconf) is a 5-day academic program in mid-August in an Asian country. Delegates will benefit from gaining a broader exposure to issues spanning multiple arenas, including political, social, economic, cultural, and business. As the world becomes more globalized as well as commercialized, the boundary between business and other aspects of society is increasingly less rigid. The Aconf seeks to capture this phenomenon and help delegates understand its impacts on the future of international relations.

The Conference Bidding Committee has won the bid of hosting 2016 HPAIR Aconf in The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK). We are looking for Host Country Organizing Committee (HCOC) Associates who are able to work for the conference organizing process.

Requirements: (Application form: http://www.cuhk.edu.hk/osa/iss/images/HPAIR_Application.docx)

- Committed to dedicate personal time for organizing the conference until late August 2016
- Team player, excellent interpersonal and communication skills
- Responsible and self-motivated
- Good command of English
- Other requirements specified by each department

Why Host the HPAIR Asia Conference

HCOC continues the work the Bidding Committee and the CUHK has achieved. HCOC members have the opportunity to jointly organize the HPAIR Aconf with the HPAIR Harvard Organizing Committee (HOC) consisting of a group of Harvard students. Through this process, members gain the valuable real-world experience of organizing one of Asia’s most prestigious conferences. By forging lasting relationships with delegates, Harvard students, and world leaders in business, politics and academia, members of the HCOC will find that organizing the conference is a uniquely rewarding experience. HCOC also needs to make sure everything is going well during the conference period.

Please refer to http://www.cuhk.edu.hk/osa/iss/images/HPAIR%20Recruitment_Appendix.pdf to learn the job responsibility and the bidding process. Additional information can be retrieved from http://www.hpair.org.
