New Issue of University MarketPlace Released

Issue 178 of University MarketPlace (UMP), a publication of the Office of Student Affairs that covers matters relating to students and their diverse experiences, was recently released.

Known as the most influential leader of Athens, Pericles said "I saw what the polis might do for her citizens, and what the citizens might do for their polis." When you are studying comfortably in the library, having a leisure walk at the University Mall, and mingling with your friends in the hostel, do you think of the contribution of our campus planners? Every step you are taking has in fact gone through the process involving their innovative design and careful construction. In the issue 178 of UMP, you will learn the above through an interview, precious photos, interesting figures, and an article about our "neighbours".

Let's pick one UMP to read to discover more! Or you can surf the following for viewing:
