Economic Conditions

The Centre for Quality of Life at The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) conducted a survey on the public perception of the economic conditions from September 27 to 28, 2012. A total of 501 Hong Kong residents aged 18 or above took part in the survey and answered questions about their family financial situation, their perception towards the business environment, the economic outlook, as well as their sentiment over consumption.

Table 1 presents the survey questions and results conducted in June 2012 and September 2012 respectively. It was revealed that 31% of the respondents said their families were financially “worse off” than a year ago, showed a decrease by 2 percentage points from the survey results in June 2012, while 15% said that they were “better off” than a year ago, went up by 2 percentage points. 53% said “the same”, which is the same figure with the June survey while 1% said they “don’t know or it’s difficult to tell”, dropped by 1 percentage point.

On consumer confidence, 17% of the respondents thought it was a good time to buy major household goods, while 54% said the opposite and 29% said they “don’t know or it’s difficult to tell”. Comparing with the findings in June, those saying “yes” increased by 3 percentage points while those saying “no” also increased by 1 percentage point.

26% of the respondents believed they would be financially “worse off” in the coming year, increase by 1 percentage point from the June survey. 15% believed their families would be “better off”, decreased by 2 percentage points from the previous survey. Those believed that they would be “the same” accounted for 49% of the respondents, increased by 1 percentage point.

46% and 34% of the respondents expected the business environment of Hong Kong in the coming year would be “mediocre” and “bad” respectively. 10% of the respondents perceived the business environment would be “good” in the coming year. Comparing with the June survey, those saying “bad” rose by 2 percentage points while those saying “good” decreased by 1 percentage point.

26% of the respondents said they were “optimistic” and 37% found themselves “pessimistic” about the economic conditions of Hong Kong for the coming five years. Comparing with the results in June, those saying “optimistic” remained the same while those saying “pessimistic” rose by 2 percentage points.

The survey also found that 32% of the respondents expected the employment situation would “deteriorate” in the coming year and 14% thought it would “improve”. Comparing with the June survey, those choosing “deteriorate” decreased by 1 percentage point and those choosing “improved” remained the same. 46% expected the employment situation would remain “unchanged”, increased by 2 percentage points compared with the June survey.

Indices of Consumer Confidence, Consumer Sentiment and Employment Confidence are reported in Table 2.

The Index of Consumer Confidence is compiled from the scores of questions number 3, 4 and 5. The higher the index, the stronger is people's confidence about economic conditions.

The Index of Consumer Sentiment is compiled from the scores of questions number 1 to 5. A higher index indicates people are more optimistic about the present situation and future development of economic conditions.

The Index of Employment Confidence is compiled from the score of the sixth question. A higher index shows a stronger confidence about employment situation.

For the first two indices, the baseline is January 2000 (index = 100). For the Index of Employment Confidence, the baseline is February 2000 (index = 100).

The Indices of Consumer Confidence and Consumer Sentiment in September 2012 were 73.4 and 78.1 respectively, went down by 1.5% and remained the same from the June 2012 survey.

The Index of Employment Confidence was 71.8, increased by 0.6% from the previous result, indicating a positive outlook towards the employment market conditions among the residents.
